

Indiana telephone privacy law has drastically reduced the number of unwanted and unsolicited phone calls. Before I may have received 10-15 calls per week now I don't get any. Before it was more like harrassment than solicitation. Even if you asked to be remove from their list you would just get called by someone else from the same company. I have had solicitors call with no concern for how early or how late they may call. Please do not weaken what is a good law.
